The return to Washington is an attitude of passive observation at present, particular interest being manifested in the rapidly growing demination of territory by the Constitutionalists. The possibility that the visit to Vera Cruz of Querido Moheno. Might mean the reopening of negotiations with the United States through Join Lind, again awakened speculation, but to-night officials were unaware of it, if Moheno contemplated such a purpose. High government officials here have said repeatedly that the only condition on which negotiations could be renewed was the assurance of fluerta's elimination.

The movement, said some of the delegates yesterday, is not simply to build good roads for automobile tourists, but to construct them to meet the every-day transportation needs of the farmer. Improved roads mean better living conditions in the country, easier communi-cation between towns and cities, less vehicular wear and tear, and decreased vehicular wear and tear, and decreased cost in the transportation of farm products. Addresses will be made also by Tresident Enos, former Presidents Hooper and Speare, Chairman Bafehof the executive committee, and esident Hadley, of the Quebec-Miami

The delegates will come from every section in the courtry, and the geo-graphical distribution of the convention will be the widest that has probably ever been in Richmond. Men come from Maine and from Florida, from Massachusetts and from California. Interest in good roads is more widespread than it has ever been, and It is confidently anticipated, it was said last night, that the convention will be the most profitable ever held. While most of the attention of the convention will be paid to the subject of good roads, there will also probably be some discussion of proposed changes in the automobile laws, particularly as to the requirements for licenses.
